Owners, Customers of Legacy Co-op

One of our employees at our Palliser Way gas bar in Yorkton has been confirmed for COVID-19. The employee reported symptoms and entered self-isolation early last week and sought COVID-19 testing shortly thereafter.

When we learned that the employee had received confirmation of COVID-19 yesterday, September 30, we reviewed our daily deep cleaning procedures to ensure we are doing everything we can to avoid the spreading of COVID-19. We also asked other team members that may have had contact with this individual to also self-isolate.

We have been in contact with the health authority and will continue to follow the directions they provide. The health and safety of our employees and our customers is paramount as we provide essential goods and face this challenge together.

We have opened the location as self-serve with pay-at-the-pump only at this time. All employees who had contact with their colleague are self-isolating.

Our priority remains supplying Yorkton and the surrounding area while keeping our employees, customers and community safe and healthy. Legacy Co-op will continue to use our already high standards for cleaning. We remain as diligent as possible in practicing all social distancing guidelines for ourselves and our customers. We have and will continue to encourage all our employees to seek testing and to undergo self-isolation if they feel any potential COVID-19 symptoms.

We understand the impacts of COVID-19, which is why we want to be transparent and disclose broad details about the confirmed cases like this one while ensuring the confidentiality of our employees.

We thank our Legacy Co-op customers and community members for joining us as we all take the necessary precautions to keep our community safe.

Sincerely,

Bruce Thurston
General Manager
